Liberty's Birthday

The Statue of Liberty is having a birthday. Just exactly a half a century ago this week, on Oct. 28, 1886, the torch-bearing goddess in bronze was unveiled before a throng of one million spectators who were awestruck at her immensity. She was the largest erected human figure in the world, and still is, for that matter. But now, against the New York skyline with its towering skyscrapers, the statue no longer looks so big to us—materially. Our material progress in 50 years has been swift and the changes great, dwarfing the goddess with the torch. But as a symbol of our liberty she looms larger today than ever, perhaps. Because in 50 years there have been changes also in the spiritual condition of men, liberty elsewhere in the world has been crushed under foot, and we are therefore more aware and watchful over ours.

May It Have Many More

It is interesting to read the short history of the birth of this monument, as given in the World Almanac. "The Statue of Liberty on Bedloe island, New York harbor, was first proposed soon after the Franco-German war by a group of prominent Frenchmen, who commissioned one of their number, a sculptor, to do the work. The U. S. congress, Feb. 22, 1877, authorized President Hayes to set apart a site on the island. A committee was formed in 1874 to raise funds. In France, 180 cities, 40 general councils, many societies, and thousands of people contributed. In the U. S., $300,000 was raised. The total cost was about $1,000,000. The torch is not the only symbol. Liberty carries in her left arm, pressed against her side, a book representing the law, which has on it the date, in block letters, July 4, 1776, as meaning liberty based on law. May it never lose its significance!"

Another Bombshell

Another malodorous bombshell in the still-very-active liquor control investigation exploded last week when some disquieting information came to the Donihue committee. Apparently a liquor control enforcement officer and his 190 men, working under the state board of equalization, aren't very happy over the prospect of losing their jobs if proposition 3, the liquor cleanup amendment, passes next week at the polls. It seems they've been telling retailers to fight the amendment, "or else." Thus applying the heat, they've got stores to change window placards from "vote for" to "vote against." Naturally some of the higher ups, also, don't want to lose their jobs.

Both Camps Are Tense

Despite the blandly confident predictions on both sides, party leaders in both camps are all tensed up like violin strings drawn too tight. There is little either side can possibly do, consciously, that would change any votes appreciably. But each fears that its candidate, or some one high up in the party, may make some last-minute slip that would change votes inadvertently. Historically, there is little justification for this fear, but campaign managers are less influenced at this stage of the game by history than by sets of raw nerves that have become very frayed under the strain. It is true Hughes lost the presidency in 1916 because he snubbed Senator Johnson here in California and thereby lost the state by but 4000 votes out of 925,000 cast. But the snub occurred more than a month before the election. Hoover tried desperately to beat back the tide in the final two weeks, as did Al Smith four years before. But apparently, in both cases, everybody had already made up their minds by then.

Maternity Marathon

The Canadian government ought to be getting pretty proficient in the role of fond parent. It stepped in and took control over the Dionne quintuplets, apparently with excellent results. Now it is considering stepping in and settling the very perplexing situation among the many mothers who claim to have won the ten-year child bearing contest. The deadline is Oct. 31, at

Mother of Mrs. H. Lea Summoned By Death Wed.

Mrs. Emily Mary Sailor, widow of the late Lafayette Sailor, passed away Wednesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Horace Lea, in San Jose.

Mrs. Sailor was a native of Montgomery, Mo., where she was born nearly 85 years ago. For many years she was a resident of Lakeport, having come from there about two months ago to reside with her daughter.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 1 p. m. in the Methodist church at Lakeport, the Amos O. Williams parlors conducting the services.

Immediate relatives of Mrs. Sailor are her children, Charles and Edward Sailor and Mrs. Fred Fuller of Upper Lake, Mrs. George Churchill of Livermore, Mrs. Archie Keesling of Campbell, Mrs. J. M. Bowman and Mrs. Lea of San Jose, and a brother, George Grace of Spokane, Wash.

Mrs. Sailor was known to a number of Campbell residents as she had visited her daughters, Mrs. Lea and Mrs. Keesling for extended periods.

Campbell Grad On Paper Staff

James Marlais, 21, Campbell high school graduate of 1934, is a member of the sports staff of the San Jose State college Spartan Daily newspaper for the second consecutive year.

The newspaper is one of the 32 daily collegiate newspapers published in the country. Marlais is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Al J. Marlais of 98 South Second street. He is a sophomore student, majoring in journalism.

FROM OAKLAND

Mrs. Gertrude Stanford and sons Jack and Richard came down from Oakland Sunday and were dinner guests of Mrs. Stanford's sisters, Mrs. Mary Lanphear and Miss Sadie Maxson.

Each time one of the mothers will collect a $750,000 prize posted by Charles Millar when he died in 1926. One mother of 23 children claims her tenth child eligible in the marathon will be born before the deadline. Another says 12 of hers are eligible to be counted. And there are other claimants. Perhaps Millar thought he was doing something for Canada when he had his bright idea. Would he still, if he were alive now? There is something odious about commercial mass production of human beings.

Farm Price List Shows Gain In Seventeen Items

Berkeley, Oct. 28.—Seventeen out of a list of 24 of the state's leading agricultural commodities experienced a price raise in September as compared to September, 1935. Three items experienced a decline in the same comparison, while in the four remaining cases the prices were the same. These comparative prices are included in a table prepared by H. J. Stover, economist of the Giannini foundation of the University of California college of agriculture.

The 17 items on the price increase list are lambs, milk, milk fat, butter, wool, horses, barley, wheat, oats corn, hay (other than alfalfa), alfalfa, cotton, potatoes, beans, oranges, and lemons. The declines were noted in hogs, eggs, and chickens. No change was noted in the price of beef cattle, veal calves, sheep and apples in the comparison between the two Septembers.

As a result of these increases the average price for the 24 products last September was 111 per cent of the 1910-1915 average, which has been indexed at 100 by Stover and which might be said to cover "normal year" returns. By the same comparison, the September prices were three points in advance of the August prices this year, but the monthly average for this year, as a whole, based on the same index, has been going along on a fairly even keel since the first of the year.

Hogs, the livestock leader, broke ten cents a hundred pounds in September from the August figure of $10.60. This latter figure was also the September, 1935, quotation. Field crops continued their good showing, being generally above the September, 1935, quotations. Potatoes are still a leader, but in the September price of $1.83 a hundred pounds, is $1.17 below the year's "top" of $3, which was reached during the summer shortage.

The comparisons are offered without comment by Stover, but indicate that for some months past, the effect of stabilizing factors have been noted in California.

HEADQUARTERS

Local Republican enthusiasts opened headquarters for discussing party interests and handing out instructive literature. A pet elephant has been borrowed from a young menagerie for an attraction. He does not eat peanuts. All are invited to call and secure literature on political points.

Mrs. R. Y. Maxon Hostess to Circle

Members of Pundita Circle assembled at the home of Mrs. R. Y. Maxon on Winchester road and Sunnyoaks avenue yesterday afternoon, with Mrs. M. E. Purmort and Mrs. D. H. Cramer on the entertainment committee.

Mrs. Purmort opened the meeting by reading the American Creed. A contribution of $10 was voted for the community chest.

Mrs. E. O. LaMontagne announced that the garden section will meet at her home on Nov. 4 for a pot luck luncheon at 12:30.

Mrs. Cramer piloted the ship on which the club is cruising from Hong Kong to the Philippine islands, where they disembarked for a land tour. She described the contour of the islands, of which there are 7,080, and related their early history. She concluded by leading a salute to the flag.

The manners and customs of the people were described by Mrs. Purmort, who read excerpts from letters written by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Gillis, who resided there for several years, and also showed a collection of pictures taken there.

An interesting account of Mr. Taft's visit to the islands and his great interest in bettering conditions, that appeared in the National Geographic was also read by Mrs. Purmort.

Two unique features of the refreshments were a half of a deviled egg resting on a "sea" of green jello, with a slice of cheese making a sail for the egg "boat." Favors were fish made of colored papers, holding candies.

Injured In Auto Tip-Over Sunday

Mrs. Emma Rubell and son-in-law, Charles Hancock, were found unconscious on Almaden road Sunday by Sheriff George Lyle.

The Hancock car had overturned at the Hilldale bridge and both occupants of the car were quite seriously injured. An ambulance took them to the San Jose hospital where they are still receiving treatment.

Mrs. Rubell was severely bruised about the face and head, and possibly suffered concussion.

Hancock suffered cuts and bruises, but no broken bones.

DR. ANDERSONS RETURN

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Anderson returned Monday night from a two-weeks' vacation, during which they visited Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Shank at Carnelian Bay, Tahoe, motored into Nevada, north through Idaho, and visited relatives in Oregon on the return trip.

California Is In Landon Column

The final Literary Digest poll, given last night over a national radio network, gave Landon 370 electoral votes, and Roosevelt 161, as the result of a cross-section by states. By this poll California was placed in the Landon column.

Robert Parkhill Funeral Service Held Here Mon.

Robert Parkhill, one of Campbell's highly respected elderly citizens passed away at his home on North Union avenue Saturday after a protracted illness.

Funeral services were held from the Methodist Episcopal church, of which he was a member, Monday afternoon, the Rev. Edwin Bowling officiating.

Interment was at Los Gatos cemetery, the pall bearers being Messrs. John Lynden, E. R. Kennedy, William Mee, Ira Bogert, A. B. Townsend and H. V. Archibald.

Mr. Parkhill was born in Londonderry, northern Ireland in 1850, coming to Minnesota in 1872, where he married Mary Forbes. About 26 years ago they came to California and have lived at Campbell for the past 18 years.

Moderate Excess Of Precipitation Forecast for Fall

La Jolla, Oct. 28.—"A moderate excess" of precipitation for the winter season of 1936-37 is forecast by Dr. George McEwen, oceanographer, at the University of California's Scripps Institution of Oceanography. The forecast for the coming winter season was issued today, and annual forecasts have been issued each October since 1917, when Dr. McEwen began an investigation to discover a scientific basis for making yearly rainfall forecasts.

"The long cycle of about 25 years, the prominent five-year cycle, and the difference between the late summer and previous winter sea surface temperatures have been used as before in estimating the probable 1936-37 seasonal precipitation," states Dr. McEwen. "There is continued evidence that the long cycle is rising to a crest, due probably before 1940. The short cycle data and sea temperatures indicate a moderate excess of precipitation for 1936-37."

The precipitation thus calculated for the 1936-37 season ranged from 100 to 110 per cent of the 1916-1934 average, the smaller percentages applying to the northern regions. The 1935-36 precipitation exceeded the average by a few inches, Dr. McEwen said, which agreed well with his forecast issued Oct. 18, 1935.

EARLY BLOOMS

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. DeVaughn brought to the Press office yesterday a branch of a cherry bloom taken from a freak tree near Sunnyvale. A bit early for that fruit. A prune orchard on the Santa Cruz grade shows quite an early bloom.

Former Gov. C. C. Young Calls for Support of Baker

San Jose, Oct. 28.—Republican and Jeffersonian Democratic leaders today asked for the election of Alonzo L. Baker to congress next Tuesday "in order to protect the best interests of the eighth district."

"I have known Alonzo Baker for a number of years, and am confident that he is the man to represent the eighth district against the follies and wasteful extravagances of the so-called 'New Deal,'" declared former Gov. C. C. Young.

Former President Hoover, en route to California, telegraphed 11 reasons why he "will vote for Alonzo Baker next week." Charles G. and Kathleen Norris, registered Democrats, offered "any and all" possible support to Baker's campaign.

Charles H. Spinks, noted Jeffersonian Democrat, called for "the election of Landon, Knox, and Alonzo Baker!" Spinks proclaimed it "a civic duty to defeat John McGrath in his attempt to fool the eighth district voters into re-electing him to congress." He declared that "the action in assessing each postmaster five per cent of his salary for a campaign fund to re-elect McGrath is but a first step in the plan to Tammanyize our district."

Former Congressman Arthur M. Free lauded Baker as the "logical choice to care for the welfare of the eighth district in congress—and the man who will restore to the voters their democratic rights."

Further evidence of Baker support was shown at a large number of enthusiastic rallies held during the past week, and in countless endorsements by civic leaders in each of the five counties that comprise the district.

Country Women To Observe Guest Day November 2

Annual "guest day" will be observed Monday, Nov. 2, by the Country Woman's club, when each member is entitled to bring a guest. Arrangements for the afternoon are in the hands of Mrs. Worthin Grattan, Mrs. H. M. Shadle, Mrs. W. R. Morgan, Mrs. T. M. Smiley and Miss Lillian Cassidy.

Miss Bernice Downing of Santa Clara will recount some features of her recent European visit and an interesting musical program will include vocal selections by Miss Maurine Thompson of the music department of the San Jose State college and a group of young ladies from the Campbell high school that form a string ensemble, will play during the tea hour.

The hour has been set for 2:30 o'clock so that all will be assembled before the program time.

Members are reminded of the "rag shower" and also to notify the committee if intending to bring a guest.

Grangers Attend State Convention

A number of Orchard City grangers were in attendance at the state grange convention at Eureka last week. They were enthusiastic in praise of the big convention, fine entertainment and hospitality of the northern city.

Those of the local grange attending were Master and Mrs. L. L. Merrill, Mrs. Charlotte Sutter, Harry Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Purmort, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hagen, Mrs. Flora Raab, Mrs. Anna Sawyer, Mrs. Jessie Campbell and Miss Hildah Messerschmidt.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

24,720 Miles in 18 Days
Some Ladies' Hats
Gen. Butler's Peace Plan
12 Ladies Good and True

H. R. Ekins, first-class newspaper man, has gone around the globe by airplane, covering 24,720 miles in 18 days, 14 hours, 56 minutes. Such a trip seems wonderfully fast now. Soon it will seem wonderfully slow. Air progress is rapid. Because it was done scientifically, by machinery, the eighteen-day trip seems less romantic than the Nelly Bly seventy-odd day trip that beat Jules Verne's "Around the World in Eighty Days." Nelly Bly, clever newspaper woman, knew how to make it interesting, going out of her way to travel by elephant, camel, jinrickshas, etc. Flying around the world costs about $5,000.

Some day some woman, let us hope, will balance her fashion budget, decide just what she wants to wear, and then wear it, as men have done, but the day is far away. These are some of the hats from which your wife, daughter, sister will choose this season:

Hats shaped like East Indian war shields; hats heavy in gold embroidery; flat pillbox turbans, gold braided; Russian style hats off the face, with tall tiara fronts; hats of Persian lamb and embroidered felt; small toques, dipped down front and back, covered with soft feathers, "the military touch predominating."

Why, do you suppose, do women take so much trouble to spoil faces and heads naturally beautiful? It cannot all be the fault of hat-makers.

Gen. Smedley D. Butler, retired fighting general of the United States marines, asks the Women's Christian temperance union to start a campaign against drunken automobile drivers, and also help peace by working for a constitutional amendment forbidding the President or congress to send troops out of the country.

You cannot change men by legislation, as was discovered in our prohibition mistake; you must change the men from the inside.

For the first time in history, New Jersey, selecting a jury all women, has surprised some, annoyed others. Why? For ages women have been judged and sentenced by individual men or groups of men. They have been ducked, branded with hot irons, put in the stocks, beheaded, hanged, burned alive.

Is there injustice in turning the thing around for a change; at least no twelve women would burn or duck anybody.

Lloyd's, British insurance concern, will insure you against anything happening, if it "guesses" that it will not happen; it usually guesses correctly. It refuses to insure against war striking England, although until lately the charge for that insurance was only one-fifth of one per cent; 200 pounds for 100,000 pounds insurance.

Somebody in Lloyd's possesses intelligence. That big organization does not like to think of war with airplanes added.

News from the East interests Americans: they might have to pay the bill. Japan and Russia, supposed recently to be on the verge of war, are said to have an understanding about things in the east that would involve depriving the British of profitable locations and rights. This does not please Britain, but that is the business of Japan, Russia and England.

Interesting flying item: Russia order in Baltimore a passenger "clipper" plane, to cost $1,000,000 and carry forty-four passengers, besides a crew of six.

The plane, very fast, can go 4,000 miles without taking on fuel, a range that would bring it across the Atlantic nicely, if it ever wanted to come back with a load of explosives instead of passengers.

The Irish Catholic hierarchy, sitting at Maynooth College, Cardinal Macrory presiding, denounces communism and persecution of the Catholic church in Spain, "mindful of Spain's kindness to our ancestors." On October 25 all Catholic churches in Ireland will take up collections "for the relief of Spanish Catholics." Mexico, once as "Catholic" as Ireland or any nation, sends, from its Chamber of Deputies, a message of sympathy to the Spanish government at Madrid.

England and France no longer guarantee any protection for Belgium in case of war, so the new King, Leopold, says all alliances are off, with France, England and everybody else.

CALIFORNIA News of the Week

Salt Ruins Water Supply
Moffett Field, Sacramento.—The water in the two 800-foot wells here has grown so salty that drinking water for the 300 men stationed here is hauled daily from Palo Alto, it was revealed by Major Clarence Lober, commander of the field. Engineers will make exhaustive tests to see if the seepage of salt into the water supply cannot be halted. With the lawns and flowers already starting to show the effects of the salt, it was said arrangements would be made to connect with the Hetch Hetchy system unless the station's wells are cleared up soon.

Income Tax Exceeds Estimate
Sacramento.—State officials estimated that California's personal income tax will bring in at least 50 per cent more revenue than was calculated when the law was passed by the 1935 legislature. Actual collections up to September 30th amounted to $9,402,148.71, with the third and last installment of the tax not due until December 15th. W. M. Walsh, assistant franchise tax commissioner, predicted the tax collections, inclusive of penalties, will amount, during the first year of operation of the tax, to approximately $12,000,000. Assessments total $11,726,700.47.

'Slide' For Suicide Bridge
Pasadena.—A novel plan for suicide-proofing the Colorado street bridge has been suggested by a man who wants a $100 fee if the plan is accepted. The suggestion is that a net be stretched all along both sides of the bridge from the railings to the ground, meeting the ground at a 45-degree angle. "None could be injured if they jumped," he wrote in his letter, "as they would just have a rather unpleasant slide to the bottom of the Arroyo Seco. But it would encourage others to frolic, and frolics are good."

Replace Old Wood Pipe Line
Norwalk.—Cedar pipe which has served Norwalk County Water District for more than a score of years is being replaced with three miles of cast iron lines. WPA will provide labor, giving employment to sixty men, according to Paul Eilers, engineer in charge of the project. The job will take approximately three months to complete.

Building Boom At Palm Springs
Palm Springs.—New buildings started the first fifteen days in October were estimated to total $156,100. This brings the total since January 1, to $2,169,400. These figures do not include the construction of garages, repairs to buildings or structures less than $2000 in value. Palm Springs is declared in seventh place in building construction in Southern California.

Probe Cat Torture Charges
Redwood City.—Action by State humane officials was sought by the Redwood Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, following reports of torture and mutilation inflicted on cats for the purpose of training racing greyhounds at Belmont. Two residents who live near the kennel declared the nights were filled with howls of dying cats and yelping of dogs at the kill.

Gate Bridge Claims First Life
San Francisco.—The first death on the Golden Gate Bridge since start of construction occurred last week when Kermit Moore, 23, was crushed under a falling giant crane. A life net saved another worker from a plunge into the bay waters 220 feet below.

Women, Minors Earn $150,000
Sacramento.—More than $150,000 has been added to the earnings of women and minor workers in California by the Division of Industrial Welfare since January 1. Mrs. Mabel Kinney, chief of the division, reported. During the past month more than 100 complaints regarding non-payment of wages, improper working conditions and kindred illegalities were reported to the division, Mrs. Kinney said.

Engineers Get Alamitos Bay Plans
Washington.—Plans for dredging Alamitos Bay to remove a vast deposit of silt have been submitted to army engineers by J. W. Blackman, Long Beach public service director. Blackman said if the engineers board and Congress approved the project, Los Angeles County will contribute $50,000 toward the estimated $160,000 cost.

State Urged to Buy Old Postoffice
Santa Barbara.—With construction of a $450,000 postoffice and Federal building well under way here, a proposal was advanced that the old postoffice be acquired for a State building. State Senator Stow made the proposal.

$2,000,000 San Diego Fire
San Diego.—More than a dozen men were injured, three seriously, while fighting a $2,000,000 fire which swept through a main downtown business block last week.

S. F. BAY BRIDGE LIGHTS UP

This picture was taken the other night when lights of the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge were turned on for the first time. The lights are a newly developed non-glare type. Official opening date of the bridge is November 12, when all northern California will join in a celebration at San Francisco.

SOUTHLAND VISITED BY FLOODS

Not in the humor for making mud pies is Elizabeth Mitchell, although she is completely surrounded with all the necessary ingredients. She is one of a hundred persons who were marooned in the Arroyo Seco near Los Angeles when recent floods and landslides blocked the road. Miss Mitchell stands patiently on a log while workers seek to dig her car out of the debris and mud.

A Pair of Thinkers

Here we have "Sonny Boy" Walker, promising young Arizona heavyweight, perched on Rodin's well-known "The Thinker" at San Francisco, and giving thought to the sizeable purses that are ahead of him if he can take Andre Lenglet, tough French champion, when they meet soon. Walker has won his last six bouts in San Francisco so he's putting some thinking in his ring work, too.

Physical Culturist

Shown sampling a California fig is Bernarr MacFadden, the man whose anti-corset drive in an obscure health magazine a quarter of a century ago laid the foundation for one of the great magazine fortunes. MacFadden came to California to campaign for Landon in Los Angeles.

Hollywood.—M. Robert Guggenheim, 25, heir to a fortune in mines, has landed a job in the production department of one of the large film companies here. He will have a minor job as a "call boy." "The only way to get experience is to start at the bottom," said Guggenheim.

Move for 1939 State Fair
A campaign to block a movement to discontinue the California State Fair for 1939, during the Golden Gate International Exposition at San Francisco, was launched by N. W. Armstrong of the Alameda County Development Association. In a letter to all exhibitors at the State Fair, Armstrong pointed out the San Francisco exposition will bring additional visitors to the State Fair. Armstrong also asked the exhibitors to submit recommendations to the directors for the 1937 fair in time to be discussed at a meeting in Sacramento on November 12th.

Farm Boys Win Honors
Two California school boys received coveted honors in the Future Farmers of America Organization, when with 63 other members they were awarded the degree of American Farmer at Kansas City last week. The California recipients are James H. Eager of Live Oak and Louis Maricocchi, Fresno. In order to qualify for the award, the young men took at least three years of vocational agricultural work in high school, earned at least $500 from farm projects in that time, and were outstanding school and community leaders.

Imperial Valley Strike Threat
The Monterey County Central Labor Council authorized appointment of a committee to extend its so-called "hot" lettuce ban to include crops of the Imperial Valley and Arizona during the winter, if the Salinas lettuce workers' strike remains unsettled. This action offered a potential threat to the movement of winter vegetable and fruit crops to eastern markets, which obtain much of their perishable fresh produce supplies from these dry, warm areas between November and February.

Vegetable Pay Raised
Orange County Mexican vegetable workers, who some weeks ago threatened to strike, have been awarded a 10 per cent wage increase by an arbitration board. It will take effect January 1. Workers had asked 35 cents and had been receiving 25. They were given 27½ cents. They were disappointed that the new wage will not be retroactive to September 1, as they had hoped.

Prickly Pears New Crop
Prickly pears are being cultivated as a commercial crop in the Los Banos district. Sam Pesco and his two sons have 30 acres under cultivation and expect to ship 3000 crates, which sell from 90 cents to $1.75. The pickers wear heavy canvas gloves and the pears must be soaked in water from 12 to 15 hours to soften the spines before they are eaten.

9700 Harvest Tulare-Kings Crops
Only a small shortage of help exists in Tulare-Kings Counties, where 8500 pickers are in the field harvesting a bumper cotton crop, according to Floyd Byrnes, manager of the National Re-employment Service. Some 7000 migratory laborers are picking cotton. The two major crops, cotton and grapes, are providing work for approximately 9700 persons in the two counties.

State Income Tax Repeal Opposed
State Grange Master George Sehlmeier opposed repeal of the State income tax and urged approval of the oleomargarine tax and chain store tax at the November election in his annual message to the California Grange at Eureka. Approximately 600 delegates heard his address.

Forest Fire Season Closes
The forest fire season of 1936 was declared officially closed last week within the Santa Barbara National Forest and the area under the Forestry Department of the County. Losses totalled $37,000 less than last year. Fire occurred every month this year except February, the report shows.

Electrification District Planned
Plans have been completed for the organization of a rural electrification district south of Oakdale. Forty farmers have signed up. A federal loan of about $20,000 would be needed.

Tehama Farm Bureau Elects
The Tehama County Farm Bureau has reelected Howard Wilson of Richfield as president, Robert Adams of Cottonwood, vice-president and Sidney Watson of Henleville as state director.

Tulare Farm Bureau Elects
William Rosenberg was re-elected president of the Tulare County Farm Bureau at the annual meeting held at Visalia.

City Sells Wine Grapes
Long famed as an exponent of the dry cause, the city of Ontario found itself identified with the great California wine industry upon receipt of $2357.35 for its grape crop. The wine grapes were harvested from a tract formerly serving as a sewer farm.

Ask Him Before Giving Your Child an Unknown Remedy

Practically any doctor you ask will warn: "Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first."

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy—"milk of magnesia," the standard of the world is established. For over half a century many doctors have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia." Safe for children. No other is "quite like it."

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Now also in tablet form. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:

Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

"There's your horse, Barney. Maybe I better give him a bit of oats before you go . . . No? Water then?"

"Rebstock and Sawdy had stepped into the stall with McAlpin. The liveryman led the horse out. Rebstock started to follow. Sawdy laid a hand on his shoulder. "Just a minute. I want to talk to you, Barney. We'll join you in a minute, Mac."

"What's up?" asked Rebstock, eyeing Sawdy closely, and always suspicious.

Sawdy was standing backed against one side of the box stall. "Barney," he said in confidential fashion, "I'd like to have just a little horse-to-horse talk with you."

"What d'you mean, horse-to-horse talk?" snapped Barney.

"Just this: Do you feel just exactly right, leavin' your money with Harry Boland?"

"What do you mean?"

"Do you feel safe? I ask you as man to man, Barney, and an old friend, do you feel safe, leaving a roll with Boland?"

Barney fumbled mentally. "Why shouldn't I?" he countered bluntly. "I'd hate to see you, after this trouble you've had, lose your money with Harry Boland," persisted the cowman. "I'll tell you honest—and you can tell the critter himself if you like—I wouldn't never leave five hundred of my money with Harry Boland."

"Never had it to leave, did you?"

"Well, no, foolin', Barney. I wouldn't do it. So that's what I say, as man to man—keep your money in the bank, not in a dive. Have you got a receipt for your money?"

"No."

"How much money are you leavin' with him?"

"None of your damned business, that's how much. I'm headin' up the street. Get out of the way."

"Don't get sore, Barney. I'm meanin' the best for you. Just wait a minute an' I'll walk up the street with you—gettin' kind of thirsty myself. Did you hear, Barney, about Bill Denison's place gettin' burned down?"

"I heard about a fire out that way—what about it?" demanded Rebstock.

"Why, nothin'—nothin' at all. But, Barney, this is why I want to talk to you: There's folks here in town that don't know you as well as I do, are mean enough to say you know a lot more about that fire than you want to tell. I claim they're wrong—what'll I tell 'em?"

"Tell 'em to go to hell."

"Suppose they won't do it, Barney?" asked Sawdy calmly.

Rebstock shuffled angrily. "Look here, Sawdy. You can't bunk me any more. If they don't want to go to hell, you go for 'em."

With this suggestion, Rebstock started again for the stall door. Sawdy's hand came down a bit heavier on Barney's shoulder.

"Barney, I want to be friends with you. What's the facts about that fire?"

With a volley of oaths, Rebstock tore loose from Sawdy's grasp, backed hurriedly away, and tried to spring over the side wall. Sawdy was too quick. He jumped to him, caught him by the arm, and slammed him halfway across the stall. Barney landed on his hands and knees, sprang to his feet, and faced his old-time acquaintance with wicked eyes. In the dim light of the lantern, high in the gangway, Sawdy caught the flash of the blade of a knife.

Both were quick. Rebstock, smaller and lighter, could strike and spring like a wildcat, but he faced a foe who, though larger and heavier, was esteemed among his fellows as one hard to corner. Sawdy held the door side of the stall with his back to the light. He could see Rebstock's eyes flashing green. Rebstock wanted to get close enough to Sawdy to cut him and jump through the door.

Sawdy carried his gun—Rebstock had left his own with Boland—but he disdained to use it on a partly unarmed man. It was no part of his program to get himself embroiled with the law by shooting the criminal; what he and his cronies wanted from Rebstock was information.

In a moment, both men, one big, the other small, were jumping about the stall like boxers stripped for the ring. But Sawdy, though big, was the fastest on his feet among the cowmen that rode the Gunlock ranges. He had little alcohol aboard, was naturally as quick as a flash, and knew he was facing the most dangerous man with a knife along the Spanish Sinks. Ten youthful years spent among Mexican bandits, together with a lean and jumpy physical make-up, had given Barney Rebstock the name of a mean man with a knife, and Sawdy had no intention of adding to the outlaw's reputation as a killer, if he could help it.

The fight was in the lap of the gods. A misstep or a foot slip might end it any second.

Barney, enraged at his plight, was breathing hard, and wind was too precious to waste in words. This silent struggle for the one slight advantage that would end the fight went on to the music of jerky breaths and nimble footing. It was soon a question as to whose wind would give out first—Sawdy, heavier, was at a disadvantage in endurance. While they feinted and jumped about, his foot slipped.

Barney saw the opening. He lunged forward. Sawdy instinctively whirled aside and threw up his knee to save his stomach. The savage thrust of Barney's knife caught the calf of his leg. As the cowman went down, his fingers gripped Barney's wrist. With a mere twist of the deadly grip learned long ago in Panhandle knife fights, he snapped like matches the two bones of Barney's forearm.

The wiry outlaw screamed. He was through; the rear gangway doors were flung open, and the confederates came running in from the corral.

From the darkness of the box stall came only the swish of hard breathing and the oaths and cries of Barney. Lefever grasped the ball of the lantern and threw the light rays within.

"Henry!" he yelled in alarm. "What's a-matter, pard? What's wrong?" He unlatched the gate of the stall as he called and hastened inside with Scott and Page at his heels. McAlpin ran down from the office. It was a moment before Lefever could make out just what was happening on the floor, as Barney, half choked, writhed under the remorseless grip that closed his windpipe. Sawdy, spread out on his stomach, lay, a huge bulk, with one arm over his antagonist. Only his heavy breathing indicated life. "Henry!" exclaimed Lefever. "What the hell's happened?"

"Nothing's happened yet. John. Look at my leg. Where's his knife?"

"God a-mighty! It's in your leg, Henry."

Lefever started to draw it out. "Hold on, John! Don't touch that till you get a tourniquet on. Who's here?" His heavy bloodshot eyes turned on Scott. "Bob! Look-see whether he's silt an artery or a vein."

Scott found blood spurting from the wound. He fashioned a tourniquet from a thong of rawhide. "Get up and get Carpy, quick!" muttered McAlpin to Page. "What you moonin' about? Henry's bad cut. Run, Ben!"

Turning to the prostrate cowman while Scott twisted the tourniquet, McAlpin, gripping Rebstock, gave orders to Sawdy; the liveryman always took the stage. "Henry!" he shouted, in his excitement. "Lay right where you are. Don't stir till Carpy comes. Why didn't you call for help?" he thundered at Sawdy. "Ain't never learned how yet," retorted the wounded man majestically.

Carpy reached the box stall ten minutes later.

The doctor held up the lantern. "Hell's bells!" he exclaimed to McAlpin and the hostler. "Don't leave the man lying in this dirt. Henry,"—he knelt at Sawdy's head—"what have they been doing? Who stuck you?"

"Doc," declared the notorious bachelor, "you might say I stuck myself. Sew me up and send the bill to my father-in-law after I get married, will you?"

"I wouldn't want to impose like that on a decent father-in-law, Henry; it'll be bad enough for any man to have you hitched into his family. Lift him out of here, boys—give me a hand. We've got to get him up to the office. What's that noise out in the corral?"

"Nothin' at all," blustered McAlpin, struggling along the gangway with Sawdy's feet. "Just a few backs from the Reservation, Initiat-in' Barney Rebstock into the tribe. Henry, you're heavier than a ton of bricks. I can't hold on much longer."

Not until the doctor had nearly finished dressing the cowman's leg did the wounded man begin to tell the story. And he had hardly been made ready to send to the hospital when John Lefever and Bob Scott appeared at the box office door with Barney Rebstock, white and scared.

"What's a-matter with the rest of you?" exclaimed Carpy testily, as he eyed the three.

"Why, Barney," explained Lefever blandly, "fell off his horse a few minutes ago and broke his wrist. Fix him up, will you, doc?"

"What the devil's this cutting and squawking all about?" asked Carpy of Lefever later that night.

The two were seated in the doctor's office about midnight. "Doc," explained Lefever, "the boys are pretty sore about Bill Denison's ranch house gettin' burned down. The day after the fire Barney Rebstock left two hundred with Harry Boland. Where'd he get it? The boys made up their minds to find out. Sawdy got him down to McAlpin's barn, but when he began to pump Barney the cuss showed fight. You know Henry. He'd never used a gun on a shrimp with a knife. So the rest of us, waitin' in the corral, carried Barney out of the barn, showed him a rope by the light of the lantern, and asked him how about that fire."

Carpy shook his head. "Dangerous business, John. Did you string him up?"

"Hell no. I hadn't no more'n adjusted the noose and asked him was it comfortable under his ear, when he told the whole story. McCrossen hired him to do it for Van Tammel."

Carpy muttered an angry epithet. "—gave him two hundred and promised two more when the job was done. What do you think of that, doc?"

"You fellows ought've asked me that afore you began stringin' Barney up," added Carpy, after a moment's thought, "there's only one thing I know of you can do now. Bill Denison is the man most interested in the situation the way it stands."

"I guess we can't get away from that," admitted Lefever.

"Lay the whole mess before Bill and ask him what's to be done."

Lefever was doubtful. "I don't know what the boy will say, doc."

"And I don't care a hang," retorted Carpy. "That's all they'll get from me."

Next morning Carpy was making his rounds at the hospital. In the corridor he encountered Lefever. John took off his hat and scratched his head. "Well, doc!" he exclaimed.

"Well," echoed Carpy, "what you doing up here?"

"We talked it over."

"Who's we?"

"Why, Sawdy, McAlpin, Bob Scott, Ben Page, 'n' me. We talked it over 'n' concluded to follow your talk—put it up to Bill."

"Sit down there in the office till I see him myself."

"O. K., Doc. I'll go in and set with Sawdy."

Dr. Carpy opened the door of Denison's room. Close to Denison, who sat, with bandaged eyes, in an armchair, stood Jane, arranging some briar roses in a vase.

Jane turned. "Oh, here's Dr. Carpy, Bill. Good-morning, doctor!"

"Any morning's a good morning when a man can set eyes on an up-an'-comin' girl like you," said Carpy. "Bill," he continued brusquely, "you're too slow. If I had as good a sight for sore eyes as she is, right close to me, I'd take a peek at her if I had to go blind the rest of my life."

Jane turned away with a protesting smile. Denison looked confused. "Say!" exclaimed Carpy suspiciously, "what's been going on here? What have you two been up to?"

Bill, he said suddenly, "you've been moving that bandage!"

"Why, I did lift the bandage for a few seconds," confessed Denison. "What for?"

"To look at the roses."

"Bill, you're a blamed liar. You lifted it to look at this girl—didn't be, Jane?" Carpy thundered.

"How do I know, doctor?" asked Jane demurely.

"Bill," he said, sitting down by his patient, "tell me just what and how much you see when you lifted that bandage."

"Doc, I'll confess, I couldn't see much—just a blur."

"And your eyes ache and sting now, don't they?"

"They burn a little, Doc."

"I'll say they burn a little! How many mornings has this been going on?"

Denison was silent. "Only yesterday and today, doctor," confessed Jane, hesitatingly.

"Well, don't try it any more," said Carpy to Denison. "If you do, I'll put you back in a dark room. I only let you out here on the theory you'd behave yourself."

Carpy picked up his bag. He was part way down the corridor when he was waylaid by Lefever.

CHAPTER XI

"COME into Sawdy's room a minute, Doc," pleaded Lefever. "He'd like to talk this thing over with you."

Sawdy, propped up in bed, led the talk. But the talk was not to Dr. Carpy's liking. "Yes," he muttered scornfully, "I expected that the way it would work out. If there's a mean job to be done in this town, put it on me."

But the pair now working on the doctor's sympathies knew their victim pretty well and, having once brought him to refuse their request, needed only to persevere in order to make him grant it. This brought Carpy back that afternoon to Denison, alone.

"Doctor," said the injured man, "I couldn't be sure this morning when Jane was here whether you were talking to encourage her and me, or whether you really think you can save my sight."

"Bill, I was honest in what I said," returned Carpy. "I believe and hope I can save your eyes. But it's not all in my hands; I told you that, too. If Nature's willing, we're going to get through all right—does that satisfy you?"

"That's all I can ask, Doc."

"Sawdy and Lefever have found out who burned the ranch house—and why it was set afire."

"Who was it?" asked Denison violently.

"Keep cool, Bill; keep cool. It's a mean mess."

Denison was on fire. "Why don't you tell the story?" he demanded angrily. "What did they do?"

"First," responded Carpy, determined not to be rushed, "they found that Barney Rebstock had a pocketful of money since the fire. They lured him down to McAlpin's barn. When Sawdy began to question him, he showed fight. The upshot of it was, the two went at it hammer and tongs in a box stall. Barney had a knife—he drove it through Sawdy's leg, and Sawdy was choking him to death when McAlpin and the boys heard the noise and stepped in to save the thief. Then they took him out behind the barn till he told his story."

"Mind you, this now is Barney's story—might or might not be the facts. He claimed he was paid two hundred dollars to set the house afire, with a promise of two hundred more after he'd burned it."

Carpy paused. He thought the sickening truth must have already begun to penetrate Denison's mind; it had not.

"Who," asked Denison, with a fell epithet, "paid him to burn me up?"

"As Barney tells it," continued Carpy deliberately, "it was between McCrossen and Gus Van Tammel."

Denison sprang from his chair. He tore the bandage from his sightless eyes. From his disfigured lips poured a stream of bitter words.

"Not too fast, Bill—not too fast. Remember there'll be another to suffer like hell if this thing ever gets out."

"Oh, I know it must never get out. But that man! Doc, he ought to be roped and dragged to death by a wild horse. If ever a robber and a thief and a murderer deserved stringing up, that man does. He's killed, or had killed, every man that ever stood in his way of stealing land or cattle, or anything a man had that he wanted."

"Cool off, Bill, cool off."

Denison sat down with his hands over his face. It wrung Carpy's heart to see him suffer. "I can't Doc. I can't!"

Lightning's Action Not Checked by Any Object

Lightning is a powerful force. The formation of clouds, or the movement of water particles in violent cloud movement creates positive electricity that seeks relief. If the negative or ground charge is the stronger, it spills over as it were and passes skyward off the points of lightning rods or other prominent points. But if the positive charge in the clouds is the stronger and is not neutralized by the negative charge from below it comes to earth with a blinding flash and deafening crash, striking the most prominent point in range.

Breaking the connections between earth and sky does not stop the discharge of lightning. It has to be neutralized, asserts an authority in the Montreal Herald, by contact with the negative charge in the earth. But a broken connection, as when lightning rod is broken, or metal roof and spouts are not grounded, only causes the lightning bolt to go elsewhere and do damage. It stops at the break maybe, but holds out pleading hands to the positive force in the clouds.

AN EARLY "BLACK LEGION"

ON TREES were posted mysterious squares of paper, black, or white or red, summoning men to midnight meetings. At these meetings there were oaths and grips and pass-words.

That was more than three-quarters of a century ago, but members of the "Black Legion," who created such a furore early in 1936, would have felt pretty much at home in those meetings back in the forties and fifties. There they would have fraternized with members of "The Supreme Order of the Star-Spangled Banner," a secret society which grew into a political party, the Native Americans, with a platform of opposition to foreigners, the papacy, infidelity and socialism.

Later they became known as the Know Nothings because, when a member was questioned about the order, he invariably answered "I don't know." In New York and Pennsylvania they elected several men to congress and in 1847 they held a national convention at Philadelphia. There they nominated Gen. Henry Dearborn for vice-president and recommended, but did not formally nominate, Gen. Zachary Taylor for President. Taylor and Millard Fillmore, the Whig candidates, were elected in 1848.

In 1854-55 the Know Nothings carried Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Kentucky and California and looked forward to the election of 1856 with high hopes. Soon the party threw off its secret character and it became apparent that they were mostly Whigs. In February they held another convention in Philadelphia at which they formally renamed their party the American party. They nominated for President Millard Fillmore, the Whig vice-president who had served all but one month of the term to which Zachary Taylor had been elected, and gave him for a running mate Andrew Donelson of Tennessee, the ward of "Old Hickory" Jackson. Fillmore carried only one state in the election which sent James Buchanan, the Democratic candidate, to the White House and the Know Nothings passed out of the political picture soon afterwards.

"TO THE VICTORS—"

"TO THE victors belong the spoils!"

Although Andrew Jackson was the first exponent of that political creed, he was not the first man to express it in so many words. The man who did was William L. Marcy of New York, leader of a faction in the Democratic party when Polk was President.

The division in the Democratic ranks was over the distribution of federal patronage and it centered, as it has so often since, in New York state. The faction, led by Marcy, was called the "Hunkers" who were supported by Tammany and who were given that name because they were always inclined to hunger, or "hunker," for office.

The other faction, led by Silas Wright, was composed of disappointed Van Burenites—disappointed because Van Buren, whom Jackson had made his successor, had been refused a second term by the party which took Polk, a "dark horse," instead. This faction was called the "Barnburners," because, like the Dutch farmer in New York state who burned his barn to get rid of the rats in it, they declared they were ready to "burn their barns to get rid of the rats," the upstart "Hunkers."

As a matter of fact they did just that in the campaign of 1848. Opposed to slavery, they joined forces with the Liberty party, took the name of the Free Soil party and nominated Martin Van Buren and Charles Francis Adams of Massachusetts. This split in the Democratic party resulted in a victory for Gen. Zachary Taylor, the Whig candidate.

Along with "Hunker" and "Barnburner" is another interesting name once applied to the Democrats, growing out of the rivalry of these two factions. In the campaign of 1840 the Whigs called their opponents the Locofocos, because at a meeting of the New York Democrats the two factions were trying to get control of the meeting. One gang turned off the gas lights and in the darkness, the other gang, which had come prepared for just such a stunt, took from their pockets the new friction matches, called "locofocos," struck them and by thus lighting the room were able to continue the session and dominate it.

The First Psychologist

The history of psychology may be said to begin with Plato, who was the first influential scientist to draw a clear distinction between the mind and the body. Aristotle went farther than Plato in distinguishing different faculties of the mind and attempted to solve the relation of the mind and the body. His acute analysis of the human organism, "De Anima," remained the standard work on psychology for nearly 2,000 years.

A few bread crumbs added to scrambled eggs improves flavor and makes an extra serving possible.

Before laundering lace curtains soak them for an hour in cold water to which a little borax has been added. Then wash in warm soap suds.

Doeskin and chamois gloves become stiff and harsh unless washed in tepid suds and rinsed in slightly soapy water.

Add a tablespoon of cream to roast beef or lamb gravy. It makes it a delicious brown.

To protect paper when cleaning paint use a piece of heavy cardboard about 12 inches square, moving it along as you wash paint.

A little hot milk added a little at a time while mashing potatoes will make them light and fluffy. Heat but do not boil the milk.

A pinch of salt added to egg whites before they are beaten helps stiffen them.

Beat eggs only slightly when used in custards, puddings, sauces, etc. Beat well when used to make food light, as in sponge cakes, puffy omelets, etc.

IS THIS THE WAY TO "CLEAN-UP"?

THE same forces which made solemn promises at the time of repeal are on the job again. Can we afford to trust them?

Remember the promises?

Here they are in exact quotation: "Party leaders will respect the pledges made to the electorate and will provide legislation that will make impossible the return of the open saloon and all its attendant evils."

"No state shall, by law or otherwise, authorize the return of the saloon, either in its old form, or in some modern guise."

The pledges were broken almost as soon as they were made. The saloon is here, with all its attendant evils, and not only in its old form, but also in new and "modern guise." The bar-maid system has been imported from Europe, and embellished by a new American wrinkle—the bar-fly. Bar-flies are girls hired to sit in front of the bar. It is their business to tempt young men to take the second and third and fourth drink.

SALOONS IN MODERN GUISE

Inns, taverns, cocktail lounges, "restaurants that are nothing more than wide-open saloons," according to Earl Warren—all these are saloons in modern guise, but "NOOLAS" (spell this one backward) takes the cake as a modern "guise."

CAN WE BELIEVE NOW?

How they fooled us! Why did we believe them? Can we believe them now?

The so-called "Citizens' Liquor Law Enforcement Committee" (false front?) is circulating literature, with the urge "Clean-up California's Liquor Situation." How would they "clean-up"? By voting the fake liquor control, No. 3 on the November ballot.

IS THIS THE WAY TO CLEAN-UP?

1. No. 3, if passed, would make possible an absolutely unlimited number of beer parlors (modern guise for saloon) throughout the state—no state license would be necessary. Beer could be sold to children as well as adults, in these saloons in modern guise. Is this the way to clean-up California's liquor situation?

No, but it is a good way for the brewers to "clean-up" the children's nickels, and produce a race of youthful alcoholics.

2. No. 3, if passed, will write into the constitution of the state a clause prohibiting the voters, the legislature, boards of supervisors and city councils from closing these saloons in modern guise. Is this the way to clean-up the liquor situation in California?

DRUNKEN DRIVERS WILL GO FREE

3. No. 3, if passed, will make the conviction of drunken drivers practically impossible, for, as a prominent attorney points out: "The amendment specifies that alcoholic liquors containing not more than three and two-tenths per cent by weight of alcohol shall be classed as non-intoxicating. This statement is contrary to scientific fact and universal experience. In this respect the amendment is the most dangerous legislation ever proposed. No legislative authority could prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquor to minors or children."

"The motor vehicle act of California defines drunken driving as 'driving while an habitual user of narcotic drugs or under the influence of narcotic drugs or intoxicating liquor.' If one were arrested for driving while intoxicated, the prosecution would be compelled to prove that the liquor consumed contained more than three and two-tenths per cent by weight of alcohol. It would make convictions impossible in most cases."

Is this the way to "clean-up California's liquor situation?"

A NEW SPOILS SYSTEM

4. No. 3, if approved by your vote, will strike a blow at the civil service principle and enshrine a "politico-liquor spoils system" in the state constitution. Is this the way to "clean-up"? Is it not rather a set-up for corruption?

DESIGNED FOR BUCK-PASSING

5. No. 3, if adopted, will so diffuse responsibility that chaos will result, as far as law enforcement is concerned.

Each member of the new state commission will be appointed by a different state official. No one will be responsible for the acts of all three.

These three "liquor czars" will be empowered to grant liquor licenses in every county and city throughout the state, and to issue rules for the regulation of these liquor joints, but the enforcement of these regulations is to be handed to the local police force, yet the local police force is to be declined the power to rescind the license of the law-breaker. The power to compel the liquor dispenser to stay within the law is the power to take the license away. Is this the way to "clean-up" California's liquor situation?

6. No. 3, if written into the state constitution, will deny to the citizens of California the right of direct protest against the issuance of liquor licenses. Such protest can be made only through certain local officials, who may, if they so desire, pass the protest on to the three "czars" in Sacramento. Then, after a local hearing has been held, the three liquor dictators would retire to Sacramento and issue their fiat, from which there could be no appeal. Thus, the citizens, judges, city councils, boards of supervisors are left helpless! Is this the way to "clean-up" California's liquor situation?

Landon Pledges Farm Security

Wants Economy of Plenty, Not Scarcity; Promises Drouth Aid.

DES MOINES, Iowa.—"I believe the American farmer should be a lord on his own farm," Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas told a capacity crowd at the State Fair grounds here, in a speech that was a complete assertion of his belief in the economics of plenty, as opposed to the Roosevelt administration's economics of scarcity.

Gov. Landon's solution of what he termed a "national problem" and not simply a "farm problem" was founded directly upon the Republican party's platform. He pledged himself to support of the family type farm and to cash benefit payments limited to the production level of such a farm, to give agriculture an equal footing with industries protected by the tariff. He promised to take care of farmers hit by drouth.

He committed himself to the fulfillment of all contracts made with farmers by the present administration. He promised to call upon the statesmen of both parties to work with agricultural leaders in the preparation of new legislation, if he is elected. And going beyond the bounds of the platform, he advocated the fullest possible development of crop insurance.

Pledges Benefit Payments.
"All the farmer asks," said Gov. Landon, "is that his income be on a parity with the rest of the nation, that he may enjoy the same standard of life, that his home be made secure, and that he be able to build up a reserve for the future."

"I know that these aims cannot be realized overnight. Miracles are no more common in Washington than they are in Des Moines. To get a real solution we must have a well-rounded program."

"If I am elected," Gov. Landon continued, "I shall fulfill all outstanding obligations made by the present administration with the American farmer. By this I mean that those who have carried out their end of the bargain will receive the checks due them."

"Those of our farmers hard hit by the drouth will be generously provided for until they can raise a crop. This means the continuation of relief checks."

Would Offset Foreign Competition.
Farmers producing a normally exportable surplus of such staple products as hogs, wheat, cotton and tobacco are handicapped by tariff protections which are effective only when there is a shortage, Gov. Landon said.

"The Republican party," declared Gov. Landon, "proposes to offset these disadvantages by the payment of cash benefits. These cash benefits will be limited to the production level of the family type farm."

"As part of the plan for removing the depression effect of surpluses I shall propose an amendment to the federal warehousing act so that reserves of feed, such as corn, can be carried on the farm."

"Under this amendment the farmer who stores his grain on the farm, in such a way as to make it insurable, will be entitled to a federal warehouse receipt. He will then be eligible to borrow from any banking agency. He will enjoy the same credit facilities as are available to the owners of grain stored in terminal markets. The grain would be stored on the farm, ready for use or sale at any time the farmer cares to take up the loan."

Suggests Crop Insurance.
Gov. Landon then took up the matter of crop insurance, upon which Kansas Republican farm leaders have been working for some time. "We realize that there are difficulties," he said. "But insurance companies are writing policies today covering risks that they did not consider feasible a few years ago."

Here Gov. Landon declared that he could not agree with a policy like that of the AAA, which attempts permanent control of American agriculture from Washington. "I cannot agree with the President," he said. "I believe the American farmer should be a lord on his own farm."

He charged that the administration, after four years, was still without a workable plan for agriculture. "It's right back where it started from!" he said. "Soil conservation—real conservation—is a subject close to my heart."

Gov. Landon reminded his listeners that two years ago he had suggested to the Roosevelt administration a comprehensive program of joint federal and state action, but that it had not been adopted.

Gov. Landon said the country's 34 billion dollar debt under President Roosevelt "can be paid only by taxation if this is to remain an honest government. Taxes add to the cost of everything and the farmer is so situated that he cannot escape their penalty. Further, the taxes reduce the ability of the consumer to buy the products of the farm. The Republican party proposes to put an end to the present waste and extravagance."

Funeral for Ed. Sower Tuesday

Edward E. Sower, for many years the shoe man of Campbell, passed away Saturday of heart failure after a retirement from business several years ago. Since retiring he had lived at his home on North First street.

Mr. Sower was a native of Ohio, nearly 79 years old at the time of his passing.

Being a member of the Knights of Pythias, that order and the Christian Science church conducted the funeral services at the Amos Williams parlors and made interment at Oak Hill Memorial park Tuesday.

He is survived by two brothers, John and Grant Sower and brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ziegler of Los Angeles, who came to make arrangements for the funeral. Mr. Ziegler will look after the property, two houses in Campbell.

Stripped of its "WHISKERS"

PROPOSITION #22 IS A TAX ON YOU!

You must defeat it or pay it - in HIGHER PRICES ON FOOD AND OTHER NECESSITIES

There is a "joker" in Proposition 22 on your November ballot!

Called a "Retail Store License," it looks innocent enough. But stripped of its disguise, it is a Tax that will have to be passed on to you in higher prices.

It provides that chain stores selling food and other necessities will be taxed $500.00 a year for each store over nine. Individual stores will pay only $1.00 a year—or one five-hundredth as much.

BUT...

...says the U.S. Federal Trade Commission:

"If the ability to undersell, based on greater efficiency or on elimination of credit and delivery cost, is destroyed by taxation, it is the consuming public which will really pay the tax and not the chain."

BECAUSE...

...as the Harvard (University) Bureau of Business Research discovered in studying 32,998 chain stores...chain stores operate on a small profit. They eliminate middleman's profits and unnecessary in-between expenses. The savings they make by operating efficiently are passed on to you in prices 10% below the average.

necessary in-between expenses. The savings they make by operating efficiently are passed on to you in prices 10% below the average.

Four out of five chain stores do not make enough profit to cover the tax. Thus some of them will be forced out of business—allowing their competitors to raise prices.

Surviving chains will be forced to raise their prices to pay the tax.

Either way, you will foot the bill.

Remember, this tax is admittedly not for revenue purposes. It is cleverly camouflaged subsidy for the middleman and wasteful business methods—at your expense.

If you think that chain store competition helps to keep all prices in line with your pocketbook—if you think that you already PAY ENOUGH TAXES ON FOODS AND OTHER NECESSITIES, vote NO and keep prices low.

For no matter how named...no matter how heavily disguised...22 is a tax on you... VOTE NO!

22 IS A TAX ON YOU - VOTE NO!

Wallace Brothers Support Landon

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—John P. Wallace (left) and his brother Dan (right), have announced their belief that the farmers of this country will best be served by the election of Gov. Alf M. Landon, with whom they are pictured here. Their brother, Henry C., was secretary of agriculture under President Harding, their nephew, Henry A., now holds the cabinet post under President Roosevelt, and the two brothers themselves have long fought for the farmer's rights as editors of agricultural publications. Gov. Landon's Des Moines speech, in which he stated his farm policy, won them over.

They motored out from Unionville, Mo., where they had been spending a month with Mrs. Smith's father, J. W. Jones, and other relatives. Mr. Smith is an ardent Landon-Knox booster and believes that this group will carry Minnesota. He also stated that many of the old-time Democrats of Missouri will vote with the Hon. They went to Twin Lakes, Santa Cruz Tuesday, and will spend the winter there with Mr. Smith's father, C. M. Smith, returning to Minnesota in the spring.

Rub Gently Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunions, the best advice for home treatment that anyone in this world can give, is to get a prescription known as Moore's Emerald Oil.

Simply ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you should notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are no longer troublesome. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic sores and ulcers are often entirely healed.

"Keep America Free—Vote G.O.P."—Mrs. O. B. Brown, Palo Alto.

Pay-as-You-Go

The Kansas "pay-as-you-go" system is the only kind of government operation Gov. Alf Landon will recognize. During four years as governor he not only kept the state budget balanced, but he paid off accumulated state debts of $18,500,000 and also lowered the property assessments and tax rates.

Drought Aid

As Governor of Kansas, Alf M. Landon whipped together a workable program for movement of livestock from larger farms to suitable grazing lands, and for shipment of feed and water to the small-herd, one family farms.

One Fourth Is Taxes

One-fourth of the working man's wages and the farmer's income is taken from him by the Roosevelt administration for Federal taxes. Most of it is in the form of hidden taxes which they do not see.

What is a public official's private opinion of his voter constituents?

Customarily, of course, this is the season when voters are expected to air their opinions, both public and private, of their public officials.

But perhaps it would be the course of wisdom, just as an experiment, to reverse the procedure and "see ourselves as others see us."

What, for example, does a public official think on election night when he learns that only 50 per cent of the registered voters in his district, or possibly 60 per cent, found time and energy to go to the polls and cast their ballots?

Let a public official provide the answer.

Says a well known legislator, with a splendid record of public service:

"Practically all public officials 'rate' their voters, just as voters

'rate' their candidates—on the basis of performance! If the voters realized the true importance of this rating in determining public affairs which vitally concern them, there would be far fewer absentees on election day.

"A strong, high percentage vote in a community, for instance, is interpreted by a legislator, a congressman, or any other public official in the district, as a mandate to get results. It means sustained interest in what he does—an alert, vigilant community which will expect a satisfactory accounting before the next election.

"A low vote, on the other hand, means that a community can be written off as unimportant in the legislator's scheme of things. If the people of the community won't take time to vote, certainly they won't command much of the legislator's time when other communities, with high voting averages and determined, observant voters, are competing for the lawmaker's attention.

"I am not justifying this system of rating voters, for a public official, theoretically at least, should give the best that is in him, regardless of the alertness or carelessness of his constituents. But to quote a bit of curbstone philosophy: 'Life is practical!' And under a democratic form of government, the voter gets out of government

For Not Growing Rice
President Roosevelt paid 19 rice growers more than $25,000 each, one of them receiving a check for $59,000. All of that for not growing rice.

just about what he puts into it."

That straight-forward statement of the attitude of public officials toward their voters—and it undoubtedly reflects the attitude of a great majority of men in public life—is of vital significance to all California voters at this time, when the country is struggling for rehabilitation and when the problems of government, more than ever before, have an important bearing on the welfare of the individual.

California farmers, it is true, have a relatively high voting average, as compared with other classes of voters. But the standing is only relatively high. There is tremendous room for improvement.

And regardless of party or partisan considerations, every farmer in California—as well as every other voter—owes it to himself, his community and his country to go to the polls on November 3 and fulfill his obligations as a citizen.

California agriculture should lead all California in the sustained voter interest which is the only possible guarantee of responsive, representative, intelligent government.

Paid His Way
Gov. Alf Landon earned the money with which to pay his way through college by working on a pipeline gang during the summer months.

Retribution

On top of crops plowed under and pigs killed by order of the gentleman farmer in the White House, an almighty Providence shows its laws are greater than the brain of man, or any one man. The crops are made even smaller.

GROWERS OF SANTA CLARA COUNTY

Here's What Reciprocal Trade Treaties Have Done to Our Crops!

VEGETABLES

In the first six months of 1936 we imported almost 50,000,000 lbs. of Mexican vegetables. Much of this tonnage was in direct competition with California-grown truck.

REDWOOD LUMBER

California has a world monopoly in Redwood Lumber. This industry must be protected from the competition of cheap substitutes by a sound tariff policy. Cedar logs come into the United States duty free.

EGGS

Importations of dried and frozen Chinese eggs into this country last year about equal all the eggs the Poultry Producers of Central California produced. Importations of live poultry from Canada increased 7,794% under the Reciprocal Trade Agreement.

FOREIGN TRADE

Balance of Trade—First 6 Months, United States:

	Favorable	Unfavorable
1934	$172,210,000
1935	29,645,000
1936 (first half)		$9,011,000

(U. S. Dept. of Commerce)

LABOR TROUBLES

In 1932 there were 829 strikes and lockouts in the U. S. In the year 1935 there were 3463 strikes and lockouts.

(U. S. Dept. of Labor)

HAY

Cheap cattle from Canada and Mexico are making it unprofitable to winter-feed stock. This condition has affected and will continue to affect the hay market. Cheap cattle mean cheap hay. The duty on Canadian hay coming into the U. S. has been reduced from $5.00 to $3.00 a ton.

CATTLE

Imports from Canada alone under Trade Agreement:

First half of 1935	77,215 head
First half of 1936	162,180 head

California cattlemen lost their Portland-Seattle market due to Canadian Agreement.

TOMATOES

37,386,640 lbs. of tomatoes were imported from Mexico during the first six months of 1936, in direct competition to California fresh AND CANNED tomatoes.

DAIRIES

Imports of Cheddar (American) Cheese from Canada under the Reciprocal Treaty:

First half of 1935	500,000 lbs.
First half of 1936	4,000,000 lbs.

Imports of butter increased proportionately. Imports of cream increased 158,200%.

WINE

Under the Reciprocal Trade Agreement with France: (effective June 15, 1936)

The tariff on still wines in cases was reduced from $1.25 to 75c per gal.

The tariff on Sparkling Wines was reduced from $6.00 to $3.00 per gal.

The Result:

Imports by Months—1936

	May	June	July
Sparkling (gal.)	7,390	30,031	30,629
Still (gal.)	123,419	194,298	198,281

(U. S. Dept. of Commerce)

Imports of Italian wines have been increasing faster than imports of French wine. Italy has been quick to take advantage of the most-favored-nations clause, and furthermore, she is under no obligation to make us the same concessions as did France. We must allow Italian wines the lower tariff. It is expected that Spain will also take advantage of the lowered tariff and send in more of her wines to compete with California vintage. Moreover when Italy devalued the Lira a few days ago, this action further reduced the tariff on Italian wines by 40%.

SHEEP

Raw wool imports from Canada alone:

First half of 1935	272,921 lbs.
First half of 1936	1,997,605 lbs.

Sheep, Lambs and dressed Mutton were also imported. New Dealers in 1935 imported 202,000,000 lbs. of wool. This represents wool from 25,000,000 sheep.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—During the recent bitter campaigning, both national political parties engaged in a good deal of palaver about the coal industry. As usual, the politicians were patting the miners on the back, telling them what wonderful assets to the nation they are, and carrying their demagoguery further by criticism of the mine owners every now and then because it was popular with labor to attack employers. Altogether, it was a rather sorry spectacle and, I think, did not do credit to either side to any extent.

But in this report, I want to stress a very much less obvious phase of the problem than was made apparent in any of the electioneering. With all of the verbiage cast aside, with all of the political hoodwinking forgotten, there is a very deep and difficult problem in the coal industry. I think it can be summarized in one question: What is the future of coal, the coal industry, and the thousands of men who know no other source of livelihood than that which they eke out in the bowels of the earth?

This question, if proper analysis is made, encompasses more than the usual factors that operate in economics. It does that because of policies of the federal government, among states and among municipalities. Because of the attempts to influence votes, the whole question has got into politics and that of itself is ruinous, an obstacle to a scientific solution.

Not so many years ago coal mine owners and coal labor units had what amounted to a monopoly on our fuel supply. Then came oil, oil with all of the scientific development that followed in its wake. Despite this, operators and labor leaders continued to take their toll from the hapless user of coal for fuel, be it a user a great factory or an individual consumer in furnace or round oak stove. But that was not all. Electricity came along with its constantly increasing automatic control. First, of course, in the larger communities and later it came to villages and farm homes. Still, the mine owners and the coal labor leaders followed an unwise course; still, they continued to take their toll and before they fully realized what the circumstance was, they had succeeded by their acts in building up a desire on the part of millions of people to have some other sort of fuel. The end is not yet, and that is why the subject is most important at this stage of our history.

During the Roosevelt administration we have seen an impetus given to public ownership of power plants never equalled. I think much of this development has gone on in a hit-and-miss fashion and that eventually the public will pay for the shiftless methods employed in development, but that is beside the point. The present question is whether our nation is going to continue to expand public ownership in such a way as to ruin an industry that is as much a part of our basic economic structure as any other unit of our natural life. I think sometimes it goes beyond that for the reason that, unless people are awakened to the fact that they are being hoodwinked to a considerable extent by public ownership propaganda, it is likely to spread and public ownership will become a frankenstein, a parasite on our body public.

When I referred to the destruction of a great industry, I had in mind the thought that the consequences will run in two directions. Yet, paradoxically as it may seem, they constitute a cycle. It works out like this: As the demand for coal declines, it is quite natural that production costs go up. When production costs go up, they eventually reach the point where a further diminution occurs in demand. When that decline in demand occurs, there is only one answer: Labor is thrown out of work because you cannot produce and have those products piled high in storage. It takes money to keep labor and machinery occupied. The coal itself, after being removed from the mines, represents money and it is subject as well to deterioration. So, the ultimate to be expected on this side of the picture is an industry dying of dry rot.

On the other side of the problem is an equally important factor at work. It takes an immense amount of capital, massed in corporate form, to maintain a going concern whether that concern be coal mining, railroading or any other of our great industries. These industries operate largely on funds obtained through the sale of stocks and bonds of the corporation. But it has always been true, and human nature shows no signs of changing, that capital is not attracted to, it does not seek investment in, a declining industry. There you have a possibility at least of insufficient funds to carry through for the coal mining industry until it can readjust itself to the new place it must occupy in our economic structure. It will occupy a new place because it will readjust itself, but it has not done so yet and the consequence of this condition is, in my opinion, coal mine labor is due for some very hard sledding in the next decade, notwithstanding the honeyed words of the politicians.

Now, to turn to the part that government plays in bringing about present conditions. I have attempted to show how greed on the part of both capital and labor was responsible in a measure for building up what amounts to ill-will among many coal consumers. But the industry itself is not wholly responsible. Indeed, I rather hold the opinion that government is as much responsible for conditions as the industry itself, and when I say government, I must limit my reference to political demagogues. They always have been shortsighted and they are still shortsighted. They have been and they are now willing to sacrifice great masses of men and money for personal political gain of an entirely transitory character.

I have said before in these columns that the country is being sadly kidded—it is almost tragic—by the wonders of such parasitic organizations as TVA. The public ownership crowd have had a willing leader in President Roosevelt and his hangers-on have promoted his policies of public ownership without being honest as to the ultimate goal, or the eventual effect.

It is not alone that there have been millions wasted in the development of the Tennessee valley electric miracle. It is not so much that taxpayers throughout the country will be paying a bill and paying it over and over again, that causes me to complain. It is not so much that the Tennessee Valley Authority will never be economically operated or become self-sustaining that brings this outburst. It is the fact that when a government, national, state or local, leads the way in this direction, it wields an influence upon a certain percentage of our population. Since public ownership advocates, in many instances, plain socialism, where in control of these agencies such as TVA, it is perfectly natural that they present to the taxpayers only the most rosy side of the story. They do not disclose to the taxpayers the adverse, the costly side, of the situation. Naturally then, hundreds of thousands of people believe that government can do this sort of thing better than private enterprise. They become convinced that private initiative has been turned into a spigot through which individual pocketbooks are drained. They do not realize that their pocketbooks are being drained much more heavily through public ownership by means of the taxes they take from you and me and everyone else. That is the sad story, made worse by the fact that through nearly four years the Washington government has been encouraging people to believe public ownership propaganda and distrust and destroy private investment.

Recent Treasury figures show that the Resettlement Administration has paid approximately $27,750,000 of its total appropriation of $134,518,000 for administrative expenses. That is, the organization which is the pride and joy of Professor Rexford Guy Tugwell has paid that amount of money to job holders in trying to carry out the professor's impossible dream.

While the sum shown as used for administrative expenses by Professor Tugwell is small, compared to the billions of total waste in the Roosevelt administration, the proper way to consider this circumstance is on a percentage basis. If you take your pencil you can calculate that about 20 per cent or one-fifth of all the funds appropriated to Professor Tugwell for resettlement, has been used in management of his plan. It may be a fraction under 20 per cent, but it is so close that even the fastidious Mr. Tugwell would not quarrel about the difference.

One-fifth of an appropriation that is designed theoretically at least to serve for relief purposes is entirely too much. It is not as great perhaps as has happened with one or two other relief appropriations, but it has always been claimed that the Tugwell scheme was planned to re-establish those who have been resettled on a permanent basis. That is to say, it was planned that the bulk of the money should be used in providing those people with a fresh start in life, but I cannot see where they are getting the full measure of help intended if a lot of job holders sit around in Washington offices or in offices in various states using up one-fifth of the total lay-out of cash.

Spanish Rebels Seem to Be Due to Win

Communist, Fascist Ideals Are Filmy to Illiterate General Populace; They're Concerned Only With Delivery From Oppression.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

AS THIS is being written, the army of the Fascist revolutionists is closing in on Madrid, less than 20 miles from the outskirts of the Spanish capital.

Thousands upon thousands on both sides have lost their lives on the firing line, have been executed like so many cattle, or have perished from starvation in times of siege. Atrocities have been committed upon religious, educational and civilian institutions which have rocked the civilized world.

All this has been happening in the name of philosophies of government which have begun to assume importance in the world only in the last decade or two. The Loyalist government supporters, headed by their new premier, Francisco Largo Caballero, are nominally Marxists and Communists. The insurgents under General Franco are Fascists. But the Spanish people are emotionalists. Most of them have not the faintest idea what these theories of government mean, and care less. A Loyalist accepts his classification as a Communist because he believes that if his government is successful, he will be delivered from the penury and oppression which has been his many of the business men and industrial holding classes.

However, in Spain there has been no humanization of industry to the point reached in many other countries. Industrial hospitals, schools and other institutions, which have been developed by many American employers for the benefit of their employees, are not to be found in Spain. Both worker and employer regarded each other merely as objects for exploitation.

Sign of the Fist.

While five years ago there was little or no hatred of class for class evident in Spain, the outbreak of ists, Communists and Anarchists among the supporters of the national government opportunity to quarrel among themselves.

Indeed in the lack of unity on both sides lies the only real hope of a compromise in the civil war. As a matter of fact it is extremely doubtful that the doctrines of either side that might emerge victorious would be beneficial to the nation. As long as either side is confident that it has enough unity and power to win—regardless of the cost in life and destruction—it is apparent that the fight will go on to the bitter end.

All Europe is aware of the extremely delicate situation that exists with relation to outside aid for either faction in the Spanish civil war. But General Franco, in a brilliant campaign, has now captured Badajoz, which virtually makes it impossible for the government at Madrid to receive aid over the Portuguese border. The capture of Irun closed an important point of entry for any help that might have been forthcoming over the French border. With the fall of San Sebastian, the Loyalists lost practically the entire Atlantic seaboard. And the insurgents also hold Morocco, the Balearic Isles and the Canary Isles.

Portugal Takes a Walk.

Premier Blum of France, with the aid of Great Britain, has succeeded in establishing an agreement among the major European powers not to interfere in any way in the Spanish incident, especially not to render assistance to either warring faction. Yet it appears from all reports certain that somehow both Loyalists and Insurgents have been receiving materials of war from some outside sources.

Russia aroused the alarm and the disapproval of the other nations when she openly charged that Germany, Italy and Portugal had been aiding the cause of General Franco, in direct violation of the treaty of non-intervention. Stalin made it clear that the Soviet would, if this outside aid to the insurgents continued, feel perfectly free to come to the assistance of the Communists of the national government in Madrid. The Russians gave names, dates and locations.

This resulted in a walkout on the meeting of the committee for non-intervention, by the Portuguese delegate, who declared that his country had been affronted.

The Italian ambassador, Signor Grandi, opened up counter-charges of the same nature against the Russians, also naming names and dates and locations said to be involved in the supply of war materials to the Madrid government by the Soviet. The Russians defended their acts on the premises that the ships which Grandi had named carried only cargoes of food, upon which there is no limitation. Germany denied that she had any part in giving aid to either side.

Investigation Will Be Slow.

It seems probable now that the committee will demand investigation of the Russian charges. The move is led by Lord Plymouth of lot. An insurgent accepts his classification as a Fascist for the same reason, or to keep himself from getting shot as a Communist at the hands of the rebels who seem destined to emerge as victors in the civil war.

The March on Toledo by General Franco's Insurgent Army.

Half Nation Illiterate.

That General Franco's army does not have plenty of work ahead of it before it can really claim Spain. There are important cities which have not yet fallen. After Madrid there are Barcelona, Bilbao and Valencia. Barcelona, a city of a million souls, has virtually shelved all other industry in the zeal to produce bullets, airplanes and other implements of war. If Caballero should find a way of combining the Loyalist strength that lies principally in these large cities, his government might hold out for some time.

But if the premier succeeds in binding his legions together in a solid front, it will not be by links of Marxist or Communist argument. Half the citizens of the country can neither read nor write. They are elemental, emotional. Their civilization has lagged behind. Literature has in a few years slipped back over centuries of what progress it may have once claimed.

There are thousands upon thousands of Spanish villages which are not accessible by road, which have no water supply. Half of the population makes its living directly from the land, by the crudest of methods. Average earnings are hardly more than enough to buy the poorest kind of food. Generation after generation, they have grown up to the same kind of existence.

These are the kind of people who are doing the actual fighting in the civil war. Are they fighting for ideals of government? Most of them have no more idea of their physical location in the world's geography than they have of television.

Republican Reform Falls Short.

By the millions, these people have for generations slaved at back-breaking labor to the profit of rich landlords not even present on the properties, and not one whit interested in the welfare of the tillers of their fields. The republic assured them that the lands would be taken from the landlords and given to them, and they could have the profits.

When the republic was ushered in, it began some reforms on the land, but was unable to supply the peasants with the funds and equipment necessary to work the farms at a profit, and the situation was little improved. In fact in some cases peasants were driven to work in the city factories at starvation wages.

The coming of the revolution was actually welcomed by certain of the business men and industrial employers of Spain. For the old Republican regime had not been so hard upon the industrial workers as upon the small farmers. Instead, it was the worker who was to blame for strikes and riots, some of them without any justification. The Azana republic had actually persecuted the present trouble must have been a long time brewing. Today class feeling is so intense that, as one distinguished correspondent put it, "in many parts of Spain to wear a collar or a tie, or for a woman to wear a hat may be inviting a bullet."

Visible demonstration of this class hatred is the challenging Communist sign—the clenched fist. Even tiny children, carted about the streets in trucks, are taught to give the sign to the bystanders along the way. And if the latter do not return it, it may lead to serious consequences.

As I have said above, in the excitement and emotion of all this stir of class against class, reason and education have been subjugated to an alarming degree. Spanish literature production is at a standstill. The only good reading obtainable in the language is the old classics. This is taken by many as a sign of the increasing, rather than decreasing, illiteracy of the general public.

Under the present regime it became apparent that the army was soon to become only the strong arm of Communism, wielded unmercifully in revenge upon the upper classes. Officers of the regular army had been dismissed and snubbed. In 1932, Manuel Azana had retired some 18,000 officers on pay, only to take this pay away from thousands of them at a later date, because of his suspicion that they were to become involved in a Fascist revolt. That was the match that lighted the tinder.

Both Sides Lack Unity.

The Fascists—army officers and the capitalistic class—conducted their revolt under the leadership of a smart commander expertly competent to take advantage of the domestic weaknesses of the Nationalist enemy. His campaign has been slow but sure. His lack of speed has given many luke-warm Social-

Great Britain, whose government is vitally interested in checking the course of any international disagreements over the Spanish case, which, it holds, is entirely local to that country, and need not draw all of Europe into another mortal conflict.

Britain has another interest. Madrid charges that the forces which captured the island of Ivisia in the Balearic group were composed primarily of Italians. Britain would certainly not be pleased with the prospect of Benito Mussolini coming into power in such a location.

France has decided to back up Britain in its demands of an investigation. The irony of it all is that any investigation which takes place will probably be so long drawn out that General Franco will have won the war before it is completed.

Edward May Abdicate to Marry Mrs. Simpson

MERE scandal and gossip have no proper place in this department, but the "affaire Simpson," as the French would term it, has progressed until it assumes world importance. As arrangements are being made for the quiet and uncontested divorce of Mrs. "Wally" Simpson, American friend of King Edward VIII of England, it is rumored in London society circles that the bachelor monarch will abdicate in favor of his brother, the Duke of York, and marry the attractive woman who has shared so much of his time in recent months. In support of this rumor is the reported fact that plans are being made for renting the farms of the Sandringham estate in Norfolk, which is the king's private property. Also, there is a story that this estate may be sold to the Aga Khan, the immensely wealthy spiritual head of the Ismaili sect of Mohammedanism.

Should Edward give up the throne, it would eventually be occupied by Princess Elizabeth, eldest daughter of the Duke of York, and this succession would be decidedly popular with the people of England. The abdication king might revert to the dukedom of Cornwall, which provides a net income of about $350,000. There is nothing in British law to prevent the king from marrying whomsoever he pleases, but no ruler of the country since Henry VIII has wedded a commoner. Court gossip in London says that Prime Minister Baldwin and the archbishop of Canterbury recently appealed to Edward for greater discretion in his relations with Mrs. Simpson and were hotly rebuffed by the king.

English newspapers imposed on themselves a voluntary censorship in this affair, but it has been broken by the Sunday Referee which prints an article declaring the king "may marry by spring," that this would result in postponement of the coronation, and that tradesmen have been insuring themselves against such a delay.

Following establishment of a south seas bureau in April, 1932, all Japanese armed forces and men of war have been withdrawn gradually from the islands, the report says, adding that the natives of the islands never have been subjected to military training.

Five Groups Accused by Trade Commission

CHARGES filed in Washington by the federal trade commission accuse five trade associations of attempting to corner the automobile parts and accessories business. The groups, which were ordered to show cause why they should not be compelled to cease their alleged combine, are the National Standard Parts association, Detroit; the Motor and Equipment Wholesale association, Chicago; the Automotive Trade associations of Greater Kansas City, Mo.; Mississippi Valley Automotive Jobbers association and the Southwestern Jobbers association. Their officials also are defendants in the suit.

The commission points out that the associations represent a "substantial proportion of the total volume of business of all manufacturers and jobbers of automobile parts and accessories throughout the United States." The commission charges that these groups "have combined together with others jointly, preventing the establishment of new and additional competitors," and with "executing certain agreements and conspiracies among themselves and with others."

Blum Warns Socialists of Republic's Danger

RADICAL Socialists are threatening to quit the "Popular Front" government of France because of discord with Communists, and they have been warned by Premier Leon Blum that the one condition whereunder the life of the republic can be prolonged is that the Popular Front "remain united." In an address to the radical leaders, Blum said a split in the coalition government would force his immediate resignation, and that dissolution of the parliament and new elections would result.

Monarchists of Austria, who would like to make Archduke Otto emperor, were encouraged by a speech delivered by Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg in which, defying the little entente, he shouted:

"No outsider, but only Austrians will decide whether the monarchy shall be restored!"

The day of a plebiscite to decide on the question of restoration of the Hapsburg claimant to the throne is "not yet in sight," the chancellor said. But, with Princess Adelheid, sister of Archduke Otto, listening, he declared that monarchist propaganda has a "proper place" in Austrian life.

"New Gold Standard" Tried by Uncle Sam

IT IS a new gold standard, a way of doing business which has never been tried before," was Secretary Morgenthau's characterization of the agreement just entered into by the United States, Great Britain and France, whereby, subject to 24-hour cancellation, they will exchange gold for each other's currencies. Financiers, economists and business men were taken by surprise by the move and immediately gave it close study. Some were disposed to label the maneuver "political expediency," but experts generally said it was a logical step in the sequence of monetary events but not positively in the direction of stabilization.

The new plan, Mr. Morgenthau said, differs from the old gold standard in that it will permit the export or earmarking of gold only to and between governments instead of private business institutions and traders.

"The door is wide open," said Mr. Morgenthau. "We're not going out drumming up business, but we'll welcome all other countries which want to participate."

According to the Treasury department, the United States alone will announce a selling price for gold. France and England will keep their selling prices secret, though there will be a free flow of gold between the stabilization funds of the three nations.

It was believed that Great Britain was the prime mover in this new pact. As one commentator put it: "The agreement was made necessary when France debased her currency and placed an embargo on gold exports, because Great Britain suddenly discovered that nowhere in the world was there left a fixed yardstick against which to measure international commitments and handle international exchange."

No More Army Chaplains, Say Disciples of Christ

THE Disciples of Christ, in an annual international convention in Kansas City, voted to send no more of the church's ministers to serve as chaplains in the United States army. The resolution adopted also asked the Federal Council of Churches "to sever its connection with the war system by dissolving its chaplaincy commission" and to "provide a non-military ministry of religion to men in the armed services at the church's own expense and under their own authority without involving the Church of Christ in any alliance whatsoever with the state or the military system."

Nineteen Die When Ship Sinks in Lake Erie

EIGHTEEN men and one woman perished in the waters of Lake Erie when the Canadian ship Sand Merchant foundered off Cleveland during a gale. Northern Italy was shaken by earthquake shocks that were felt as far away as Yugoslavia and Austria. Twenty persons were killed by tumbling walls, and thirty others were injured.

Many Are Killed in Moslem-Hindu Riots

FOR three days Moslems and Hindus in Bombay fought each other fiercely with guns and knives in riots that started during the construction of a Hindu temple near a mosque. Before the authorities had restored order about fifty persons had been killed and several hundred wounded. Nine attempts to set fires were made and one Hindu place of worship was burned to the ground.

Samuel Merwin, Novelist, Dies Suddenly

DEATH came suddenly and unexpectedly to Samuel Merwin, one of the well-known contemporary American novelists. He succumbed to a heart attack in the Players' club in New York. Mr. Merwin, who was sixty-two years old, wrote, among other books, "Anthony the Absolute," "The Passionate Pilgrim," "Hills of Han," "Silk," and "Bad Penny." He was associate editor of Success magazine from 1905 to 1909 and editor the following two years.

Coast Maritime Workers May Decide to Strike

AUTHORITY of the national maritime commission to declare a permanent truce in current contract controversies is challenged by the negotiating committee for the Pacific coast maritime unions, and members of those unions are instructed to vote on a proposal for a coast-wide waterfront strike.

The maritime commission had peremptorily demanded that the Pacific coast ports be kept open while it sent an investigator to San Francisco to discuss the conditions which have long threatened to bring on industrial warfare.

In telegrams to President Franklin Roosevelt and the commission, the committee said the commission had caused "great unrest" among the workers through its participation in negotiations between ship-owners and dock and shipboard employees.

The seven unions, claiming a membership of nearly 37,000 workers, are the International Longshoremen's association, the American Radio Telegraphists' association, the Marine Engineers' Beneficial association, the Masters, Mates and Pilots of America, the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, Marine Cooks and Stewards, and the Marine Firemen, Oilers, Waterfenders and Wipers' association.

Russia Using Spanish War to Foment Discord

SOVIET RUSSIA made a second determined effort to aid the beleaguered government of Spain, and sustained a second rebuff. Ivan Maisky, Russian ambassador to England, handed to Lord Plymouth, British chairman of the non-intervention committee, a virtual ultimatum demanding immediate convocation of the committee to consider blockading the coast of Portugal against arms shipments destined for the Spanish insurgents. It was understood in London that Lord Plymouth replied that if the proposition were seriously made, it should be presented through diplomatic channels to the governments concerned. The Russian plan was for a blockade by English of French warships.

Observers in Europe are convinced that the Soviet government does not expect the powers to agree to any such blockade as is suggested, but is chiefly interested in stirring up discord.

Leaders of the Fascists were reported to have planned a steady, steam-roller advance on Madrid, and this offensive was already under way. The defenders of the capital were hastily building fortifications in the suburbs and surrounding the city with trenches. In Oviedo the dynamite-armed force of loyalist miners was still battling with the garrison and rebel troops sent to the rescue were about to enter the city.

Belgium Drops Alliances and Will Be Neutral

BELGIUM, which since the close of the World war has been tied tight to France by a military alliance, has decided to drop that and all similar alliances and to rely for her safety on strict neutrality and a larger army. King Leopold so informed the cabinet, telling the ministers that Germany's reoccupation of the Rhineland "practically puts us back where we were before the great war." Belgium's geographical position, he said, "makes it imperative for us to maintain a military machine of such size as to dissuade any neighbor from using our territory to attack another state." The period of military service was extended from 12 to 18 months.

"Belgium must pursue a policy exclusively and wholly Belgian," Leopold said. "In any case our engagements should not go beyond keeping off war from our own territory. Belgium must remain outside of its neighbors' conflicts."

"Any policy of alliance with a single country would weaken our position abroad. A purely defensive alliance would not meet the case because, however prompt the intervention of our ally, it would only come after the invader's blow, which would be crushing."

Only America Lags in Naval Construction

FIGURES made public by the American Navy department show that since July 1 last every great naval power except the United States has increased the number and tonnage of its war vessels.

In the 2½ months from July 1 to September 15, the United States reduced the number of its ships from 324 vessels totaling 1,080,715 tons to 306 vessels, totaling 1,062,875 tons.

Became Run-Down

"Until about 6 or 7 months ago, I was always unusually strong and never had a day's sickness. Then I began to get all run-down—and I suddenly became so weak that I was terrified. I didn't have any strength left at all. A friend of mine was over one day, and she told me about William's S. L. K. Formula. I bought a bottle and tried it. After just two bottles, I felt like a different person. It has again given me glorious health, and I feel it my duty to tell other housewives what relief Williams' S.L.K. Formula gives and how easy and quick you can get your housework done." (Mrs. G. E. Peterson, 230 E. St., Marysville, Calif.)

DON'T BE THE GOAT FOR THIS TRICKY TAX ON YOU

$1 $500

- This huge California department store with literally dozens of little stores, or departments, under one roof will be asked to pay only $1.00 per year under the proposed Retail Store License.
- This little Sprouse-Reitz store, serving small town residents at the lowest possible margin of profit, will be asked to pay an extra tax of $500 annually if proposition 22, the Retail Store License, is not defeated on November 3rd.

Thousands of Sprouse-Reitz customers will suffer if Proposition 22, the Retail Store License, is put over on the public November 3. Sprouse-Reitz has proved a boon to residents of many small California towns—bringing them big city merchandise, prices and services they otherwise could not enjoy.

But the Retail Store License threatens the very basic idea on which this business was founded—on which it has grown from a little concern to a successful California enterprise operating 84 modern stores and employing 400 Californians in steady, well-paid jobs—the idea of honest goods at the lowest possible margin of profit.

The Retail Store License is the device by which middlemen and outside interests are trying to handicap money-saving California chain stores with an unfair tax—a tax that costs the largest metropolitan department store a paltry $1.00 per year, while the smallest Sprouse-Reitz store will be required to pay $500 annually—a total of $38,011.00 in extra taxes for our 84 convenient stores.

This extra tax will necessarily raise the prices on the merchandise we sell. You'll have to pay more for what you buy—and go out of your way to buy it! Any thinking Californian will do everything in his power to defeat this unfair, discriminatory taxation on Nov. 3. Vote "NO" and keep prices low!

Perhaps you feel that the Retail Store License doesn't concern you. But let's look at the facts.

It's a fact that the Retail Store License is nothing more or less than a disguised TAX.

It's a fact that it will raise retail prices—cause YOU to pay more for the necessities of life.

It's a fact that it will seriously cripple many enterprising concerns, close convenient neighborhood stores and make it harder for YOU to find the things you want to buy.

It's a fact that YOU and other California buyers will pay for the tax out of your own pockets, through higher living costs.
